GTP/Roehl, Cerrenner

Report of Operative G T Purdy

Sept. 10th, 1926.

Interviewing Mrs. Minnie Roehl and Mrs. Salome Cerrenner

Operative went to the address of Mrs. Minnie Roehl at 63 Willow Ave., Hoboken and interviewed Mrs. Roehl, who is a sister of Mrs. Gibson. I told her I represented an insurance company and was investigating the death claim of her brother, whereupon she told me that her brother disappeared 11 years ago and has not been heard of since and that he would now be 41 years of age. She then stated that the claim had been paid to her mother quite some time ago. I then asked her if she is Mrs. Gibson's sister and she stated that she is and suspected that I am a reporter and I convinced her that I am not. She then told me that I would have to see her mother and took me to #71 Willow Street, to the second floor front. Mrs. Roehl only opened the door of the apartment a few inches and spoke to her mother from there. The mother stated that that insurance had been all settled. Operative then asked if he could see Mrs. Cerrenner and was admitted to the apartment. After asking a few questions regarding the insurance matter I started to talk about Mrs. Gibson.

Mrs. Cerrenner, Mrs. Gibson's mother, then suspected that I was a reporter, but after convincing her I was not I was able to gain her confidence. I then read her the newspaper article which was in the World of Nov. 2, 1922. She stated that her daughter, Mrs. Williams, is a liar, a bum and no good. She then stated that she and her husband, Charles Eisleitner were married in France and both came to this country in 1871 and landed in New York on the
